Dear sir: I have been well during all that time. He has always and at all times been to my mind and as far as my observation extended a steady, faithful and correct in the discharge

Montgomery is a man of good impulses, generous, kind hearted, an educated lawyer, and has heretofore possessed an excellent always found him honest and true. His failing has been the use of liquor, and

Judge Martine

Dear Sir,

If I had known as much as I do now prior to the charge of forgery being preferred against J. L. Montgomery, he or his family never would be in this trouble. His prospects were bright, "but Company will do a great deal for man or woman." The young man has done ~~some~~ considerable business for me and everything went well until this sad affair occurred, and had I the power this very thing would be put out of existence at once. As it is, I pray you to be as lenient as possible.

And you will forever oblige the person who has money he needs.

My Dear Judge

If you can consistently do so, I beg of you, in behalf of a most worthy father of James S. Montgomery (for whom I have just signed a petition) that you will grant the suspension of sentence asked for. The prisoner is not a criminal of low grade. He is well connected, and has a family dependent upon him, and I feel satisfied that a little clemency at this time will lead to his reformation and make of him a more worthy son to his afflicted father whom I have known for more than thirty years.
