Deponent further says that he was in this place Sunday before last and played one game of pool with Henry Kavanagh; that he took a cigar on the game but didn't smoke it; that deponent has been in this place on Sunday night until about half past nine o'clock; that the place opens at about half past eight in the morning, and a good many people go in there; that he has seen a good many women come and knock at the side door on Sundays; that they would have pails and pitchers to get ale; that it was in the early part of March that deponent

Deponent works for four dollars a week.

Deponent further says that he has been in the same place two or three times before on Sundays and has played pool in said place for drinks, and has drank ale there; that sometimes Hughes has given him the ale and sometimes Murray has given it to him; that on the other occasions that he was in said place there were four or five boys, mostly of deponent's age, in there.
