COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.

The People of the State of New York,

vs.

HENRY ELDRIDGE.

City and County of New York, ss:

John F. Jackson being duly sworn says: I am a member of the firm of Jackson & Co., manufacturers of ice houses, with a place of business at No. 626 Tenth Avenue, with about fifty (50) people in our employ.

The defendant Henry Eldridge above named was in our employ for about thirteen years, during which time I have always found and considered him honest, steady and reliable.

The said Eldridge was entrusted by us with the care of moneys belonging to us and he was often sent to the bank with deposits consisting of cash and has been out on collections and always returned the amount by him collected.

On several occasions he was sent on construction work one hundred miles away from this city and would have to remain away four or five days on account of the nature of the business entrusted to him and has always returned with the collections by him made.

The firm has always considered him as well intentioned and perfectly honest and I do not believe him guilty of the charge from what I know of his character, and, if he were discharged on this complaint, the firm would readily reemploy him.

Deponent further says that the said Eldridge is the only support of his widowed mother who is so dependent upon him for support that if the said Eldridge were sent to prison, deponent verily believes that the said mother would have to go into some charitable institution and be cared for at the expense of this county.

Sworn to before me this 6th day of February, 1890.
