Before
Hon. Randolph B. Martine and a jury.

New York, August 7, 1893 .

A P P E A R A N C E S .

Assistant District Attorney Battle for the people.
Mr. for the defence .

Indicted for assault in the second degree.

Indictment filed July 21, 1893 .

J A M E S W H A L E N being called on the part of the People and duly sworn testified as follows:
He was a police officer connected with the 15th precinct. On the 15th of July, 1893, he saw the defendant on the corner of Clarkson and Greenwich streets in company with three or four others. Defendant was standing up with a can in his hand, and it was half past 8 o'clock

P. M. Witness ordered the crowd to disperse, and all went away except Frederick Miller who refused to go. Complainant put Miller under arrest and proceeded to take him to the station house. At the corner of Leroy and Greenwich streets witness saw defendant again. He asked what witness was going to do with the prisoner. Witness told him to go away. Witness started up through Leroy street with the prisoner, defendant following behind, and half way the block he told witness to let go the prisoner. Witness told him to go away. Defendant then struck witness in the face with his fist knocking him down, and causing his nose to bleed, whereupon the prisoner escaped. At the time the assault was made there were several parties behind defendant, but don't know whether they were following him or not.

CROSS EXAMINED.

Witness was coming from his post and was informed by people that defendant was on the corner and had been drinking beer with Frederick Miller and two others. They were sitting there laughing and singing except defendant who stood up with a can or growler in his hand. Witness ordered them to disperse and they obeyed except

Miller. There seemed to be excitement before witness made the arrest, people watching and looking out of the windows of houses. Defendant made witness' nose bleed and knocked two buttons off of his coat. Witness was trying to keep the streets orderly and quiet, and ordered the crowd to disperse and move on. The defendant was half a block away, but the others were not within view. At the time witness arrested Miller he took hold of him and proceeded in that way towards the station house until defendant came up with them at Leroy and Greenwich streets. He was standing there and there were several people with him. Witness then turned east towards Hudson street with his prisoner, and looked back and saw two fellows hold defendant, and heard the remark "You had better keep away". Witness was about 20 feet away from the crowd at the time this occurred. Then witness noticed that defendant ran towards him alone on his right side, and said "Let him go". Witness said "You go away; you want to get locked up too?" That is all that passed until the assault occurred. When witness received the blow he fell down and while on the ground witness' hold on the prisoner relaxed, although they were both on the ground. Before witness could get on his feet the prisoner and defendant ran away down Leroy street, and went into an alley at 613 Greenwich street. Witness couldn't get assistance and so lost both of them. At five o'clock on the following morning, the 16th, saw defendant getting out of a drywood's box in Leroy street between Washington and West streets. He said "You have got me now." Witness said yes, and took him to the station house, and he abused witness all the way there, calling him whore and bastard. and wouldn't always have his uniform on. Defendant hit witness one blow, and he had hold of the prisoner at the time. Witness' nose was sore and swollen for a couple of days after the blow was struck on the 15th of July; it was swollen up on the outside and inside. There was no mark left on the nose

J O H N J. M E E H A N being called on the part of the defense and duly sworn, testified as follows :
He lives at 613 Greenwich street and works at 142 W Wooster street in a packing box shop. On the 15th of July at the time the officer testified in the evening defendant came through Greenwich street and a baby fell from a window, and struck a wooden cellar door on a level with the pavement. Frederick Miller picked the baby up, carried it into the yard and gave it to its mother, and defendant ran down the street for an ambulance, but he didn't know how to ring it up and couldn't find anybody to ring it up. When defendant returned a police officer was dispersing the crowd that had collected through the excitement caused by the falling of the baby out of the window at 613 Greenwich street. The officer told defendant at the door of the house in which he lived to "get out of here". Defendant said "You know I live here." He said "Get out of here or I will break your head." Defendant went up stairs in the house, and after two minutes came down and walked as far as the corner. At that time the officer was coming across the street with Frederick Miller but defendant didn't know he was arrested until he saw him across the street. Frederick Miller is defendant's brother in law and lives in the same house. Defendant was alone in front of his house and went across the street to the officer and asked him "What are you arresting him for?" The officer said it was none of his business. So defendant pleaded for the prisoner's release, saying he was a married man and had a child a year old that day. The officer said to go away, and defendant continued to plead and the officer made an effort to strike defendant, in doing which he stumbled and fell, letting go the prisoner; and defendant and the prisoner Frederick Miller ran away. The officer didn't strike the sidewalk. The next morning the officer met the defendant. In the meantime defendant had been to a friend's house all night playing the violin until five o'clock A. M. when he started for home. At King street he again met the officer, who made a rush at him along with another officer, and both together clubbed defendant about the head and body until he was bleeding like a slaughtered bull, only because the officer missed his prisoner the previous evening. The officer took defendant to Charles street police station on a charge of assault, and from there he was sent to St. Vincent Hospital where his wounds were bandaged. Defendant showed a scare over his eye and another on his scalp where the hair didn't grow. Don't know whether the officer saw the baby fall out of the window or not .

CROSS EXAMINED.

Defendant lives at 613 Greenwich street; has worked in a box factory two years. On the 15th of July he knocked off work at 12 o'clock it being Saturday. Then defendant came home and had a meals' ^cvituals; stayed home until three P M. and then went out . He met a few friends, Frederick Miller his brother inlaw being one among them; they each had three glasses of beer. Partook of the beer all the way up from Beech street until they reached Greenwich street. Didn't have any drink between three o'clock and six o'clock only what he had with Miller, being the three glasses . Defendant left the house at three o'clock when he met Miller between Quarter after three and four o'clock, and got to Greenwich street about 6 o'clock having taken three beers each and talked with a few truck drivers. At Greenwich street they lingered around there until 7 o'clock, walking up and down one block after another. The baby fell out of the window at about 7 o'clock, and at the time when it fell they were going down the street from Leroy street. Defendant didn't do anything, but Miller ran and picked up the baby, and defendant ran to ring up an ambulance, and the next thing defendant saw was the officer in the middle of the block dispersing the crowd. Defendant was not standing on the corner with the beef can in his hand as testified to by the officer; other people may have been there. He came back after running for the ambulance. He does not know where Miller was arrested. He does not know that Miller was under the influence of drink. Defendant met the officer when he had Miller in custody going up Leroy street. He supposes the officer had hold of Miller but cannot swear to it. Defendant pleaded with the officer for the release of Miller--that Miller was a married man and the father of a baby a year old that day. He didn't say to let him go. Defendant said "Mr. Whalen, let him go" The officer said go away. Witness knew the officer had arrested the prisoner. Witness knew he had the right to plead, and was pleading with him as one friend would plead for another friend. Defendant did not know whether Miller had been disorderly or not. Witness continued to plead with the officer but didn't say any thing wrong to him. Defendant told the officer it would not benefit him to take Miller in--that he wouldn't gain anything by arresting the prisoner and breaking up his little home. The officer said to go away and threatened defendant, but don't know what it was. The officer didn't say he would lock the defendant up if he didn't go away. He didn't have time to speak but struck at defendant's face with his fists and missed it. Then defendant saw him stumble and release his hold on the prisoner. The officer was walking along on the sidewalk and he stopped when he struck at defendant; he was in the middle of the walk, and there was nothing there for him to stumble over, just smooth pavement. Don't know whether he fell or not. When the prisoner found himself free he ran away, and then the officer rushed at defendant. The officer claimed he fell but defendant didn't see him fall; only saw him stumble. If the officer had fallen defendant would have known it. Defendant then ran away in the same direction as Miller, but defendant ran into the house; defendant joined Miller the next morning. The last defendant saw of Miller was in the alley where they both ran up together. Defendant was right behind Miller and didn't say a word to him. It was not an alleyway that defendant ran into but a hall way.. Defendant came down the hallway, and lived in that building /

Defendant believes Miller is working now, but believes he was convicted for this offence and got two months and gave $500 bonds. He didn't go to the Island but gave bonds for good behavior .

Defendant next saw Officer Whalen at six o'clock on the following morning, and on the way to the station house he broke defendant's head, and then defendant abused him for the way he beat him, and told him if he lost his uniform he would be a "bum". That is all witness said. It is not true that defendant called complainant a whore; and did not say that he would take his uniform off of him.

RE-DIRECT EXAMINATION. It is three steps to the hallway, and that was witness house .. It was in the neighborhood of the witness and Frederick Miller's house, both lived at 613 Greenwich street. When Miller got away from the officer defendant ran away with him. Did not make any such remark the next morning when defendant was arrested as "You have got me now". Defendant don't recollect saying anything else to the officer only not to kill him. It was after the officer struck the defendant on the way to the station house he said that if he lost his uniform he would be a "bum." Didn't call him a whore; never knew of a man-whore. When defendant addressed the officer to let Miller go, he said "Mr. Wheelan, let him go." There was no command or threat made by defendant. Defendant was taken to the hospital, and his wounds were dressed; but was first taken to the police station. After leaving the hospital he was taken to Jefferson Market police court, and has been confined there ever since. Didn't see the officer after Miller escaped when he was in pursuit, but he was not bleeding. Witness heard the officer testify he was bleeding from the nose, which is not true, and heard him testify that he struck him, which is not true. Witness did not touch the officer. Defendant saw Miller escape, and knew he was in custody. Defendant's pleading lasted about a minute. Defendant in that minute addressed the officer as Mr. Wheelan--asked him if he would not please let Miller go, that he was a married man, and the father of a child that was then just a year old that day. Defendant stated if he arrested him he would lose his position. He told defendant to go away. The next time he told defendant to go away and he did not, the officer struck a blow at him and stumbled. He struck at defendant with his left hand. If the officer said he was on his right hand side, that is not according to defendant's recollection. Witness was back of the prisoner, and the officer turned around and struck at him holding on to the prisoner, and missed him. It was something similar if a person was running after a person, and he went to grab him, and missed him. When the officer struck at defendant the force of the blow carried the officer down; Miller did not go down. Did not hear the officer testify that he took the prisoner down with him. Did not see Miller down at all. The officer stumbled about three or four steps before he could straighten himself up; he did not go down; he didn't have his club in his hand at that time, and at any time on that day he didn't strike defendant with his club.

Defendant heard the officer testify that he came out of a drygood's box on Greenwich street. Defendant denies that he was in the drygood's box, but was coming around the corner at the time, and met officer Sweeney and another officer, don't know his name, but might have seen him before. The other officer's face was familiar to him, but don't know him. Officer Whalen struck defendant with his little "billy" or club before he took hold of him. He kept on hitting defendant on the head and calling defendant names such as son-of-a-bitch. He called defendant more than a dozen names on the way to the station house, but cannot remember only that one. The officer beat defendant all the way to the Charles street station from the place of arrest corner of King street and Washington street. He held defendant there for awhile, and then hit him three times--twice on the head and once over the eye. It was for more than six blocks the officer rained blows on defendant, and another officer named Sweeney and another officer, three officers in all. Defendant only met two officers first, and the other joined them afterwards. All three rained blows on the defendant. Officer Whalen took hold of defendant when he arrested him, and rained blows on him until he reached the station house. Then another officer came. Only two officers went to the station house. Sweeney hit defendant a couple of times with a weapon between the shoulders. Then he went away. All the blows were received at that time, and defendant was sent to St. Vincent hospital.

At this time defendant was too drunk to do anything to defend himself, as he was drinking all the morning. Defendant had been drinking in a house where he played on the violin until five o'clock in the morning. It was in a tenement house and they were very respectable people; it was a birthday party. There were 6 or 8 people there. They had a violin when defendant got there, and he played there all night--had waltzing and beer and soda water-- and stayed there till half past five or quarter to six .. Defendant was so affected that he went to sleep in the house in a chair; didn't reside there; it was in Washington street, and defendant went towards home. He was still drunk but knew his business. In the hospital they cut the hair away where defendant was wounded, and it has not grown out there since . The three marks were made on the morning of the 16th July.

Defendant was never convicted before; was arrested a year ago for sky-larking in Jane street. When defendant was arrested in the morning he was coming through Washington street, and was not asleep in a drygood's box when arrested. The corner was full of drygood's boxes. Defendant had not fallen down in the street. Did not receive any wounds where defendant had been drinking in the night and before he saw the officer. The officers gave the wounds.

Defendant shows his right hand to the jury, and shows three fingers missing; the witness also doubled his hand up showing his fist.

O F I C E R W H A M L E N recalled, on the part of the people, testified as follows:
He arrested defendant at 10 minutes to five o'clock A. M. July 16th in the middle of the block of King street between Washington street and West street. Had no conversation with him but with Miller had a conversation. When witness put Miller under arrest his head was in bandages. As a result of the conversation witness went down to the corner of King street and Washington, and there found defendant just in the act of getting out of a big drywood's box. He had no shoes or stockings on, and was intoxicated. Defendant's head at that time the officer found to have been cut, and took him to the station house. Couldn't say that defendant was bleeding from his head before he was arrested. Didn't strike him on the way there to the station house. Officer Farrell was with witness. Couldn't say that Sweeney struck him. Witness saw Sweeney standing at his post corner Greenwich and Washington streets. Witness was with the defendant all the time until he arrived at the station house. Didn't strike defendant at any time; did not see any one strike defendant. Sweeney was not near enough to strike defendant; he was standing at his post corner Greenwich and Washington streets. From the time defendant was arrested until he reached the station house defendant was in witness custody all the time. Had a conversation with Miller in regard to defendant in the morning when witness had Miller under arrest. Witness had got Miller again in the morning just before he got defendant.

Jan 16 1896-

I concur in this recommendation. Much time and money has been used in the endeavor to procure evidence which I feel sure exists but which as yet the People cannot command. There is no reasonable hope of procuring in the testimony now available & I do not feel justified in expending the greater expense which a trial would entail, on the case now in possession of the People.

Just City

COURT OF GENERAL SESSION.

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK a against Marie Meyer

After a very careful investigation respecting this case, so far as it relates to the defendant, Marie Meyer, I am of the opinion that the People are without the necessary evidence required to obtain a conviction.

The People, at this time, are utterly unable to procure evidence tending to connect the defendant with the commission of the crime described in the indictment. The witness, Carl Muller, who testified against the defendant, Doctor Henry Meyer, positively refuses now to testify against the defendant, Marie Meyer, and several other witnesses, whose testimony might tend to connect the defendant with the homicide, referred to in the indictment, cannot be brought within the jurisdiction, nor at this time can they be found. At this time, to bring the defendant to trial, would involve the county in a large expenditure of money, which would be wholly unwarranted by the evidence now in the possession of the District Attorney.

I recommend that the defendant, Marie Meyer, be discharged upon her own recognizance.
